... because water is our most precious property

We from hellbrok review on more than ten years of expert knowledge in production and marketing of waterless urinals, in which we make great demands to economy but also to ecology. Customers from all over the world have confidence in us and our products.

Sustainability – an often used key word of our times – takes center stage of our action.

Not least, due to our headquarters in the vacation- and recreation land Tyrol (Austria) the love for nature has a very special significance to us. Who once has experienced the beauty of a clear mountain spring, will see water in an altogether different light.

Our products combine environmental protection with economic efficiency and contribute to conservation of this valuable property for following generations.

... what's good for the environment is also good for the human being

Based on an innovative membrane technology, we from hellbrok offer waterless urinals in highest quality and with efficient ecobalance.

The advantages of this system are obvious:

- no water / no electricity necessary
- low initial cost
- high return on investment / low payback period
- sanitary / easy purification
- without chemicals
- reduced plugging risk
- easy maintenance
